If you register for or access services offered by these vendors, you choose to share your name and contact details directly with them so that they may contact you. For example, if you register for a vendor-branded (or co-branded with us) free webinar, we will collect your registration information on behalf of that vendor for its own use. We may also keep a copy of that data for our own use, consistent with this privacy policy.

Excepting the above, NGI does not sell or trade Personal Information to third parties without your prior consent. If you decide that we should not use your Personal Information, please notify us and we will discontinue use.
